

The Reflective Labyrinth

Welcome to the Reflective Garden's Labyrinth.

You can peacefully walk the route and enjoy the sights and sounds.

Others may travel the path
thinking about the journey we take through life, as if the labyrinth is a metaphor for our experiences.

We are reminded that nature surrounds us and we are part of God's wonderful world.

He travels with us as we live,
learn and grow.

Turn the pages to walk with us...

Sometimes it is only when we are faced with difficulties and challenges to our path that we stop, pay attention and see the beauty and detail in the world.

We should be humble in our walk.
To enter we may need to bow our heads.

Sometimes we support others and
sometimes they
support us...

just as these plants are.

Some may appear
strong, others
weaker. Size is no
measure of importance.

We are all
cherished in God's Kingdom.

As we walk on our journey, we sometimes find ourselves travelling towards new, bright light; full of hope and optimism.

If we travel too fast we can miss the treasures and life becomes nothing but a hazy blur.

Take a moment to stop, look around and enjoy the rich texture.

At times there may appear to be more than one path.
How are you guided to choose faithfully and wisely?

You may need to travel in a direction which doesn't appear
to be obvious or
logical.

The wide path
always seems
so much easier.

But is it the right
one?

May The Holy Spirit guide you.

At times thorns will try to restrict your progress.
Small things of the world may niggle, worry and hurt.

Straying from the right path can lead you into the nettles.

It can feel hard when in darkness and the path to the light is barred. Keep hope and trust that it will pass. Remember who walks with you.

Every now and then it is important to rest and be refreshed.
Stop, reflect, enjoy and recharge before setting off again.

Taking the narrow path is never easy. Draw strength and face those new challenges in hope and faith.

New places and opportunities come into sight as you travel.
New perspectives on familiar worlds come into view.

Little treasures can be found in unexpected places.

At times the ground
feels uneven and your
steps unsteady.

You can feel as if
everything is going
downhill.

As the pace increases
we feel out of control.

Recognise your strength in The Lord.

He will not let you fall.

Recognise that some barriers are natural but others are man-made.

Sometimes we all need support. It's there.
We just need to look, ask, accept and lean.

When battling through, it can feel as if you are not in the same world as everyone else. But you never walk alone.

It is often tempting to keep walking and working,
when what you really need is to rest.

Never feel disheartened if you see a path you have been on before. You are seeing it as a different person.

There are all manner of things that may have been missed first time around; and others you can only see from your new perspective.

There is always a time for
some things to
die away,
others to grow
and
new life to
spring forth.

We may return
to the same
point but find ourselves as changed people.

During each journey, each day, we are transformed.

Within each moment, you
have the opportunity to blossom.

Thank you for taking the time to read this book.
